NICHOLAS D'ORLANDO

DRIVER INFORMATION

NATIONALITY: AMERICAN/CANADIAN

RESIDENCE: NEW YORK

Nicholas began his racing career at five years old and quickly became one of the top rising talents in karting. During his journey, Nicholas consistently fought for podiums, wins, and championship titles. In his later years of karting, Nicholas was recruited as the first Compkart factory driver to race in the FIA European championships, and then later brought on as a top driver for multiple World Championship titled team Kart Republic. After two years competing as the number one American competitor in the FIA European Karting realm, budget restrictions forced Nicholas to take some unwanted time off. During that time, he supported his brother Michael's career and attended all the races learning and observing from the sidelines.

After two years on the sidelines, Nicholas came out swinging in his car racing debut. Joining the junior formula ranks in the 2021 Formula Race Promotions F1600 championship with Team Pelfrey, Nicholas had the most dominant/record-breaking season in the 16-year series' history. Nicholas continues to carry the record for the most wins, pole positions, fastest laps and championship points in a single season.

In 2022, he then competed in the latter half of the USF2000 Presented by Cooper Tires Championship pulling in four top-10 results and a fastest racing lap in only four event weekends. His performance has made it no mystery that he has the talent needed to achieve his goals of IndyCar as he plans to return to the USF2000 Championship in 2023 to compete in a full season.
